At the first meeting of the Junior C.Y.O. held on Sunday afternoon, March 9th, elections of officers took place--which are as follows--President--Bruno Fioravanti; Vice-President--Elaine Desjardins; Secretary--Ray Thorne; Treasurer--Rose Devuono. These members will hold office until March, 1948. After the elections, the Reverend Moderator thanked the retiring executive--who were President--Ben Scagnetti; Vice-President--Rena Farenzena; Secretary--Delma Farenzena; and Treasurer--Stan Hyduk--and complimented them on their efficiency as a unit. He also stated that he hoped that the new Executive could carry on the work as well as their predecessors. Father Sullivan added that he expects the Juniors to carry a full page in the NEW Bulletin weekly when it makes its appearance. Before the meeting was adjourned, plans were made for an outing during the week.

THE MODERATOR'S COLUMN.....

Dear C.Y.O. Members:

The month of March brings to our mind the feast days of two great Saints--St. Joseph, Patron of the Universal Church, and Patron of Canada. This week, we shall celebrate his feast day. Let us recall what St. Joseph means to us. As a foster-father to the infant, Jesus, he performed all duties of a loving father. He cared for the Child in every possible way, and he left us an example that we should cherish. He was called 'a just man', a tribute applied to no one else, as our Patron, we should lift our spiritual voice in beseeching his paternal care, just like he showed God made man under his charge. The second Saint of this week, St. Patrick, Patron of Ireland, is truly memorable for his wonderful deeds towards mankind. As a scholar he was brilliant, and likewise as a teacher. He taught many, showing them the doctrines of our faith.

Let us not forget to beseech their intercession by voice of prayer. We can ask St. Joseph to be our protector, and ask St. Patrick to give us that faith which made him so prominent.

"RECTITUDE IS A PERPETUAL VICTORY"PENETANGUISHENE

--Rita C. Stortz.

Finding myself in one of Ontario's oldest towns, Penetanguishen, (which name translated from the Indian tongue, means 'the land of rolling white sands')--hence, I thought it fitting to write, for the Bulletin readers, a short sketch of the town's early history.

Penetanguishene has a history that stretches far into the past, and is almost as old as Quebec City itself. It began with the coming of Jesuit priests in 1615 to establish Missions among the Hurons, and with Champlain's visit in the same year. These early missions were wiped out by Iroquois raids. However, not long after, the union of the two Indian villages of Winrio and Ihon-ateria, which had been built about that time, marked the real beginning of the Penetanguishene that stands today.

During the two centuries that followed, nothing of historical interest took place in this locality. The first occurrence worthy of note was the establishment, in the early 1800's, by Lieutenant Governor Simcoe, of a road from York (now Toronto) to Holland Landing, thence by water to Kimpenfeldt Bay (Barrie), and on a direct line from there to Penetanguishene.

In 1818, a military and naval post was established at Penetang. Log barracks were built at first, but were replaced by stone barracks at the time of the 1837-8 Rebellion; the Officer's Quarters of that time still remain. Before the century had run half its course, however, the post was abandoned and turned over to the Canadian Government for settlement, thus disestablishing the most inland Canadian military post over which the English flag ever flew.

Celebrated visitors to Penetang. historic shores include: John Galt, the Superintendent of the Canada Co., who passed through on his way to its immense tracts of land on the Lake Huron shore in 1827; Sir John Franklin on his first journey in search of the 'North-West Passage' in 1825; and Lord Sydenham, the Governor-General in 1841.

Penetanguishene in 1881 was thriving and prosperous, with a population of twelve hundred, about 20 stores and 12 hotels. It was a port of entry, and it exported about 30 million feet of cut lumber. Besides the saw-mills, there were a number of mechanic's shops, two tanneries, a grist mill, a foundry, and a glass factory.

Penetanguishene in 1947 is an ordinary Ontario town with a population of something less than five thousand--chief industry, boat-building.

On Friday evening, March 14th, the Jr. C.Y.O. enjoyed a Hike. After the lunch, the group amused themselves to music until 11 p.m.

EDITORIAL--CONTINUED.....

The district is an ideal summer vacation spot, and attracts many tourists. I said that Penetang is an ordinary town--and it is, except for the fact, that in every street there lurks some reminder of the history that goes back far more than three centuries.

Before signing off, I should like to say a few words about the C.Y.O. Bulletin. Just last week I was reading a letter to the Editor in which one reader suggested that each issue should sell for at least 2¢ per copy; I stopped, momentarily, to consider how much the paper was worth to me, but decided that it was more valuable by far, than I could ever express in terms of money.

OVERHEARD AT THE ALLEYS:

"Who's the new 'pool-shark' in slacks?"

"Why isn't Johnny Van Heukelom bowling this term?"

"How many strikes does that give Margaret Lachapelle?"

"She's lucky if she gets over 100!"

"Watch Hubby for form!"

"I have to beat my brother--or --!"

"Where's Raymond? He only bowled one line!"

"Get a load of that white sweater!"

HUMOUR DEPT.....

David Mann: My brother made a scarecrow that frightened every crow in the place away.
Bernice Haluschak: Mine made one that scared them so badly that they brought back the corn they stole over three years ago!

Sophia Comrie: So your little boy wasn't really lost!

Margaret Gillis: No. We found him under the Sunday paper.

Bill Thorburn: (seated in bus)
Excuse me, but you're standing on my feet!

Rose Devuono: (standing) I know. But if you were a gentleman you'd be standing on them yourself.

MacLaking: Been helping my wife clean house. This morning I took down all the Venetian blinds and put them in the washing machine and turned on the switch.

Ted Holmes: Venetian blinds in a washing machine?

Mac Laking: Yes--do you know if anybody wants to buy 6000 toothpicks?

Dinner Guest: Will you pass the nuts, Professor?

Professor: (absent-mindedly)--Yes, I suppose so, but I really should flunk them!

WE WONDER.....

Why Mary doesn't accept money from certain persons after they make purchases?

How Mr. Rinaldi is making out in his new profession?

Who spells Taffy's name --"TAFTE"?
Why not spell it 'toffee'--seeing he is in a 'sticky' business (selling stamps).

How Mrs. Kaatari and Mrs. Spencer enjoy pushing perambulators down the street?

Why Diane Scagnetti is so reticent about certain information that she has in her possession regarding the sleighride?

Where Theresa Egan keeps herself on Thursday evenings, as in two weeks' succession, she has not been seen at the Alleys?

If the parties concerned have received pictures of themselves 'and company' which were taken while they occupied the rear seat in certain cars?

If Nino's theme song is "Guilty"?

HELPFUL HEDDIE SAYS.....

"Fish for the Lenten Season!"

Here is a tasty recipe--
CREAMED SALT COD:

1 cup flaked cod
1 cup cubed raw potatoes
Simmer gently until potatoes are tender (about 15 min.). Drain, and add 1 cup of thin hot white sauce made from 1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 cup milk. Reheat and add 1 tablespoon lemon juice. To prepare salt fish for cooking, soak about 24 hours in cold water.

SALMON LOAF:

1 small can of Salmon
1 cup cracked crumbs
1 egg
 $\frac{1}{2}$  cup sweet milk
Nutmeg, paprika, salt
Remove bones from the salmon, and break into small pieces, add well beaten egg, seasoning and cracked crumbs. Bake in a well-buttered dish for 15 minutes. Serve hot.

Now, when that 'fish day' comes around, how 'bout trying a new dish?

PROBLEM.....

Answer to last week's--

Mrs. Spendthrift spend $40.
This week's--

If a chicken is worth a chick and a rooster, and a chicken and a chick is worth a turkey; and two turkeys are worth three roosters, then how many chicks is a chicken worth?

SORRY TO HEAR--Mrs. Ella Magill had the misfortune of falling down, and breaking her leg. We hope she has a speedy recovery!
